Dear Friends,

WE WILL ALL HAVE REASON to add to our t-shirt collection one that reads, "I SURVIVED THE RECESSION OF 2008-09." We are all aware that these are unprecedented times and we are all trying to find our way through the challenges that uniquely fall at our doorsteps. I can tell you we are blessed on this campus to have the energy and hope of more than 3,000 students who will be enrolled this year. Families continue to find ways to be supportive, and we are bringing our very best of resources and advice to those who need to be getting on with their education at this time.

For many, these times actually make an education even more valuable. The research shows that those with degrees are more likely to be among the employed, and if they lose their employment, they are more likely to get back into the workforce sooner. We often stress to our students that they can be successful in these times because of their dedication, flexibility, and the creativity they bring. They simply find a way to be needed and become the best bargain an employer can have. Our interns are praised as they make their presence known across this area in businesses, governmental, and social service agencies. We are confident they will do well even though they will meet great challenges as they take their place on the starting line to their careers.

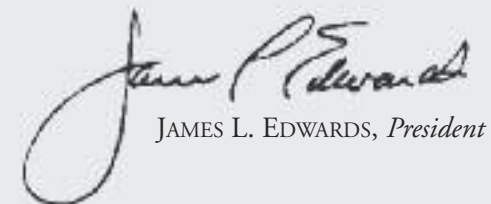

I want to express our gratitude to you and to so many who are standing with us in generous support for our annual fund and in our capital campaign, Dreams. Discovery. Direction. Because you found a way to write that check, we will be able to award an Anderson University grant to a student of need and promise. Because you stepped up in your giving, that family conversation at the kitchen table will be filled with the hope that this year a daughter or son can reach the dream of a college education. Thank you, thank you!

The pages that follow will list the names of those who have joined us in this mission to bring a world-class education in a Christ-centered environment to this generation of AU students. It is an honor role of those who hold this good place in trust who would not miss being among our annual donors. It includes the names of the vast majority of our faculty and staff who generously invest in their own work. Church leaders have given to our matching church scholarship program to encourage the church's youth to begin their vocation right here on this campus. Alumni from around the world believe in their school and never miss giving a gift to enrich the value of their own degree and continue this legacy to the next generation of students. You can see why we are so proud of all that these pages represent to us.

In the months to come we will find new and creative ways to keep this university's programs vibrant, attractive to growing numbers of interested students, affordable to the families we serve, and a powerful presence in our wider mission to change lives. Your encouragement and your steady support provide the foundation for a future we are building even in these times. I have often thought how blessed we are to be given this work to do that matters so much and makes such a difference. Thank you for joining in this blessing.

JAMES L. EDWARDS, President

When Casey Jo Snyder BA '08 graduated with a double major in finance and math, she knew that someday she wanted to donate to Anderson University. She had appreciated her experience at AU and had received scholarships and aid herself, so she wanted to give back someday — someday when she was settled and financially secure, when she had larger sums of money to contribute. But when Snyder received a mailing about the U Matter campaign, she realized someday didn't have to be years in the future.

U Matter is an initiative that reaches out to young alums and is an important part of the Dreams. Discovery. Direction. campaign. For recent grads just starting out in the world, life events such as marriage, starter homes, and bundles of joy don't leave much money for donating. With U Matter the focus is not on the amount of the gift, but on the participation itself. Even though recent grads may not have the large amounts that are usually associated with capital campaigns, they can still be involved in the mission and the growth of Anderson University.

For Snyder, a financial management analyst with the Department of Defense, a U Matter donation made sense. Her donation was what she might normally spend on dinner and a movie. "I can handle that," says Snyder. "Even just a small amount can make an impact, especially when a large amount of people are doing that."

Snyder believes in AU and was compelled to give because she felt the education she received at AU couldn't have been duplicated anywhere else. Two important influences on her as an AU student, besides the high quality of her education, were her relationships with her professors and her involvement with the Tri-S program.

Snyder's professors invested in her life in a personal way that has continued after graduation. She still keeps in contact with them through phone calls and e-mails, sharing her personal and professional achievements. "A lot of my friends at work went to larger universities, and they just didn't have that connection with their professors," she says. "Going to AU definitely changed my life, and a lot of that had to do with the interaction I had with my professors."

Her Tri-S experiences were also life changing. During her time as a student, Snyder took eight Tri-S trips. Her travels included countries such as Honduras, Guatemala, Peru, and Australia. She had never left the United States before becoming involved with Tri-S, and looking back she realizes Tri-S opened up her worldview. "I think in my mind I saw the world as like suburban America, and that's the furthest thing from the truth," says Snyder.

Shortly after beginning her job with the Department of Defense, Snyder had to travel to Afghanistan as part of her work. She feels her Tri-S experiences prepared her for traveling to an unfamiliar culture. "Obviously, Afghanistan is different than Latin America," says Snyder, "but having those experiences prior, I felt so much more comfortable. I felt like I was an asset."

Giving to Anderson University doesn't have to be something on the distant horizon of "someday." Continuing to be involved with the AU family is what matters, even if the gift is small. "Even though I'm just starting out, I can give back," says Snyder, and she encourages others to consider doing the same. "You can feel like you're a part of what's going on," she says. "It's a great place to grow. There are a lot of good things going on there."

“Helping Students Like Us”

JANET '63 AND VIRGIL BA '66 LEATHERMAN

Janet (Shackleton) '63 and Virgil BA '66 Leatherman have been faithful donors of Anderson University since the 1980s. Because of their love for the university and their experience as students struggling financially, the Leathermans recently created an endowed scholarship for students just like them.

“Education is extremely important to us,” said Virgil. “Our parents were not very wealthy. In high school, I worked 35-plus hours a week and maintained a low B or C average. I went to Anderson with $700 in my pocket. It gave me a chance to expand my horizons a bit and gave me an understanding of just how important education is. Now that we’re able, we want to provide a few dollars to students who are in the same boat we were.”

For the Leathermans, Anderson University, the Church of God, and giving of their own resources are long family traditions. Both came from families that were active in the Church of God, and they estimate that more than 50 relatives have also attended AU.

“I remember quartets from Anderson who came to perform at my church in Cornell, Wisc.,” said Janet. “It made an impression on me. I had three uncles go to Anderson, and they all were pastors across the country for many years. My sister went there a couple of years before I did. We have a long history of aunts, uncles, siblings, nieces and nephews who attended Anderson.”

In fact, Virgil’s great-grandfather helped start a Church of God congregation in his hometown after hearing the late D.S. Warner speak at a revival.

“When I got into high school, it just seemed natural that’s where I wanted to go,” Virgil said. “I decided that’s where I would go whether I could afford it or not.”

During their years at AU, Virgil was involved in Amici men’s social club and intramurals, and Janet sang in the choir.

“One of the richest parts of college was the chapel speakers,” said Virgil. “We had people who had been in countries around the world who would come and speak at chapel. I had a lot of good professors, and I thoroughly enjoyed the camaraderie on campus. My first year, Jim Edwards was in a dorm room about five or six rooms away.”

Janet also enjoyed the dorm and kept busy with music.

“I went on a choir spring tour one year, and that has a lot of memories,” she said. “I was in the Park Place Church choir for another semester. That’s where I met Virgil when we started dating our sophomore year. It was a really wonderful time.”

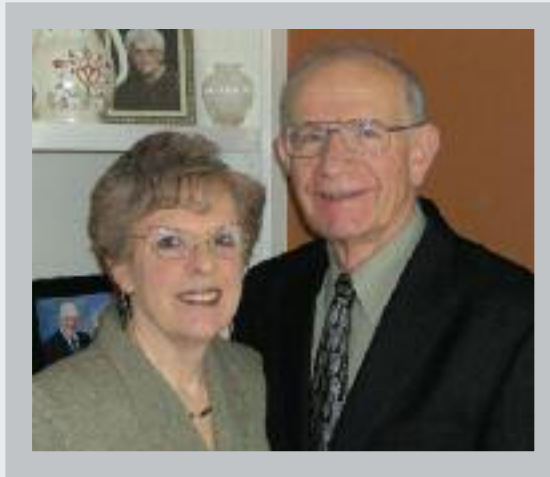

After graduation, Virgil worked as a teacher for four years and a school administrator for 35 years. Janet stayed home to raise children in the early years and worked in the accounting field for 20 years. For the last 15 years, she has helped plan worship services at church. Now they both enjoy retirement at their home near Grand Rapids.

“We got married as a result of meeting each other at AU and that has set the course for our lives,” said Virgil. “If for no other reason than for our marriage, we’re very appreciative of AU. We thank AU for many, many things.”

This past fall during a conversation with an AU Teletouch caller, Virgil and Janet indicated their desire to establish an endowment. They later met with former classmate and current university development officer H.L. Baker to make this a reality.

The Janet and Virgil Leatherman Endowed Scholarship Fund is the latest way the couple has shown their appreciation. Recipients of the scholarship will be from Church of God congregations in Wisconsin and Michigan (where Janet and Virgil grew up) who have demonstrated financial need and are in good academic standing. It will be available to students in the 2010-2011 school year.

Although they hadn't been on campus in more than 40 years, Gene BS '57 and Norene BS '59 Slacks' time at Anderson University many years ago left a lasting impression. So much so, that upon their passing, they recently donated their entire estate, worth more than $800,000, to AU.

"Words can't express our gratitude," said Ronald Moore, senior development consultant at AU. "I believe the donation is confirmation of AU's pledge to stay in good standing with alumni and friends. This — the knowledge of extended connection to the community — provides comfort beyond the tangible impact the donation will have."

By the Slacks' wishes, the estate will be split evenly between the biology and business administration departments on campus, according to Moore.

"It will be a tremendous boost to the biology department," said Dr. Janutolo, dean of science and humanities. "It will supplement our income, something we are excited about in such economic times when budgets are being curtailed."

Janutolo said the money will help the department in two ways. First, it will allow the purchase of equipment so students can be more competitive in seeking employment or in going on to graduate or medical school. Second, the endowment will increase money for the general budget each year, again providing more supplies and lab equipment for students.

Dr. Terry Truitt, dean of the Falls School of Business, also expressed gratitude for the bequest aiding the business administration department, indicating that plans for use of funds were still being developed.

Although the Slacks had likely not been on campus since their departure, they spent several years on campus while pursuing their degrees. From 1951-1957, the Slacks both worked at Anderson University while also attending classes. Gene worked at the Physical Plant and Norene worked in various positions, including housekeeping and business office cashier. They left for a couple of years, and then came back so that Norene could finish her degree in 1959. Gene also came back to campus to become the director of Physical Plant operations, a position in which he served until 1963.

Moore, who was a student employee in the business office during that time, remembers Gene as a kindly and gentle man.

According to Norene's nephew, Jess McCoy from Columbia City, Ind., Gene and Norene had a voracious passion for education. After leaving AU, Norene taught biology and general science at Highland High School in Anderson and worked part time at Coe College. She was also a writer for the Olean Times-

Herald daily newspaper and the Alfred Sun weekly newspaper in Alfred, New York. She did graduate study in plant physiology and qualitative chemistry at Ball State University.

Gene was an administrator of mechanical operations at various colleges and universities, which allowed the couple to live in different areas of the country throughout his career.

Upon retiring, the Slacks relocated to North Fort Myers, Fla., where Gene did volunteer work at the local libraries until his death.

"They were both avid readers and favored mystery novels," said McCoy. "Until Gene's death, the television was only turned on for news and weather, and occasionally Court TV or C-span."

McCoy said the Slacks were of modest means through most of their working careers, but they inherited a quantity of stocks upon the death of Gene's parents. Although they had lived in many states, their first love of the AU community and their ongoing passion for education prompted them to leave their estate to a place that remained in their hearts. — KIMBERLY WALKER
