Under this special student status, I fully understand that I am classified as a non-degree seeking student and thus am not eligible for student financial aid or government loans.

I also understand that my enrollment as a special student at the Anderson University School of Theology does not imply that I have been admitted into any degree seeking program or been given full admittance to the seminary. Should I decide at a later time to seek a degree or become enrolled in a degree program, I understand I must complete the full application of the School of Theology and meet all the admissions criteria of that degree program as noted in the most current catalog. I also understand that my full application must be processed and approved by the Admissions Committee at that time before being accepted into a degree seeking program.
